BIZZYBLOG: I HAVE TO AGREE: A TEL LAW IS A BIG WIN FOR KEN BLACKWELL

Submitted by jamesrhodes on May 18, 2006 - 12:05pm. Tags: Republicans

from Tom:

I know some people are upset that the local governmental units are off the hook, but I believe for a lot of reasons that I thankfully won't have to slog through that TEL would have been a straitjacket on local governmental units, particularly those in growing areas, which Mr. Blackwell hopefully create more of when he becomes governor. And besides, Colorado's TABOR has never had local governmental restrictions; yet it enabled the state to achieve stellar growth in its first five years of existence, and growth that matched the rest of the country since then.

Hopefully, this will light fires in many more states.

As I said last night elsewhere, it looks like Mr. Blackwell is effectively governing even before he's elected!

Interesting perspective! But for a legislature that wouldn't have touched Petro's CAP in a million years, this is a huge accomplishment. It appears that yesterday afternoon, Blackwell, in about the time it takes to eat lunch, accomplished more than Taft did in 7 years.

It is a win; but I am more

It is a win; but I am more worried that we will win the battle and lose the war because of it. This legislation will not last if Strickland wins-- period!
